

FRANK'S HEAD IN BRACES.

Excessive Heat Delaying Recovery from Wound in Throat.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Leo M. Frank, whose throat was cut by a fellow-convict, J. C. Creen, fifteen days ago, is not recovering as rapidly as the doctors attending him had hoped he would. The excessive heat is causing him much suffering. It will be a month at least, the doctors say, before he will be able to leave the special hospital ward in which he has been placed.

Frank's head was encased today in surgical braces, so that he cannot move it. The braces are arranged so that his head is held to the left side to prevent stitches on that side of the neck from tearing out. Mrs. Frank is at the bedside of her husband every day.

Creen is still chained to a bedpost in the prison dormitory. He will be kept there for an indefinite period.

48 YEARS AT SEA ENOUGH.

Purser Hinsley Quits After Sailing
6,500,000 Miles.

Howard Ernest Hinsley, purser of the American liner St. Louis, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, announced that it was his last voyage, after having been at sea continuously since 1867. He has rented a small house and farm on the estate of the Duke of Buccleugh, near Dumfries, Scotland, where he will spend the remainder of his days with his family. James Cowie, formerly chief engineer of the New York, who retired three years ago, will be a near neighbor.

Mr. Hinsley was born in Liverpool sixty years ago and started his sea career on the Inman liner City of Baltimore when he was 12 years old. He entered the British Navy, in which he served until 1880. Rejoining the Inman Line as assistant purser, he was promoted to purser twenty-three years ago and became a naturalized American citizen when the company was incorporated as the American Line in 1888.

During the Spanish-American war Mr. Hinsley was paymaster of the Harvard, now the Philadelphia. All together he has traveled 6,500,000 miles, or 260 times the distance around the earth. He will be succeeded by E. Slight, the assistant purser of the St. Louis.
